Michigan Works! Association Welcomes New Workforce Development Specialist Lynn Bajorek

LANSING, Mich.—Michigan Works! Association, a statewide workforce development organization, announced today that Lynn Bajorek has joined its team as workforce development specialist, effective Oct. 18, 2010.

Bajorek will coordinate policy and programmatic information to support the Association and its members – 25 Michigan Works! Agencies and workforce development partners across the state.

“Lynn has a history of using strategic partnerships to drive community recovery and growth in Michigan,” said Michigan Works! Association CEO Luann Dunsford. “I look forward to seeing how she uses her expertise to advance the Association’s state and federal workforce development goals.”

Bajorek comes to the Association from the U.S. Department of Labor’s Employment and Training Administration where she was a manpower development specialist. Previously she was a senior policy analyst for HeiTech Services, a Maryland-based consulting company, and a presidential management fellow for both the Social Security Administration and U.S. Department of Labor in Washington, D.C.

“I’m very excited to be part of an organization that is so committed to excellence, both for its members and the job-seeking public,” Bajorek said. “Luann and her team represent one of the best workforce associations in the country and I couldn’t ask for a better opportunity to support economic and workforce development here in Michigan.”

Bajorek earned a Master of Public Affairs from University of Minnesota, Humphrey Institute of Public Affairs and a Bachelor of Arts from Michigan State University, James Madison College.

Bajorek and husband, Paul, reside in East Lansing with their children, Luke, 4 and Nick, 1.
